

Abstract of Disclosure

[0054] A system and method are described for the access and retrieval of information, which integrates television, video and/or similar sources with the information resources available on the Internet. This invention permits a user to select an item displayed on a television screen and, without significant interruption, order the item or request additional information on the item or provide feedback to the television source signal provider, for example, the television network or advertiser.

09897095-03404